DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tsurumi et al. (6,070,867) in view of Kobayashi et al. (5,901,950).

Tsurumi et al. teaches a transmission device comprising :

- a driving gear, 4, having gears over an entire circumferential surface thereof;
- a follower gear, 6 and 18, including an intermittent gear having a toothless portion;
and
- a controller, 7, for controlling the follower gear to be engaged with is disengaged from the driving gear;
- a starter, 10, for enabling the follower gear to be engaged with the driving gear when the controller controls the follower gear to be disengaged from the driving gear;
- the follower gear comprises a first follower gear, 6, and a second follower gear, 18, which is engaged with the first follower gear;
- a sheet feeding roller, 1, driven by the power transmission device and the follower gear.

Tsurumi et al., however, fails to teach that the drive gear and the follower gear are helical gears, and that the second follower gear is helical over its entire surface. Kobayashi et al. teaches the use of helical gears, 20 and 25, as drive and follower gears in a power transmission device. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to design the drive and follower gears of Tsurumi et al. as helical gears as taught by Kobayashi et al. in order to prevent a backlash between the gears when they engage and re-engage after the intermittent portion.
